

Moya Johansson | Manager

Moya is an experienced evaluator and project manager who works primarily in suicide prevention, mental health and disability sectors, as well as the legal services environment. Her legal background enables her to navigate complex systems to produce evaluation insights that meaningfully inform policy decisions. Moya has worked with a range of government and not-for-profit clients and is highly skilled at stakeholder engagement, qualitative data collection and analysis, while eloquently articulating findings for diverse audiences. Clients value her attention to detail and dedication to project management practices that guarantee timely, high-quality project delivery.

I am passionate about bringing an analytical and evidence-based lens to evaluation. Our independence demands reasoned and defensible judgments about the merit and worth of programs, services and policies.

Education:

- Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Arts in Communication (Public Communication), University of Technology Sydney, 2016

Sector experience: Mental health and suicide prevention

Moya has extensive experience managing projects and designing mixed-methods evaluations in a range of sectors. In her work in the mental health and suicide prevention sectors, she works alongside people with diverse lived experience to design, collect and synthesise qualitative and quantitative data for reporting.
