

Business as unusual: Sense-making under pressure

A free webinar for human services organisations navigating complexity and uncertainty

Making time to explore the challenges and opportunities facing your program or team is more critical than ever

This webinar will create an opportunity for you to explore these, using a Sense-making approach (inspired by Chris Corrigan). In the workshop, we will take you through observing what is happening, and help you move to making sense of the patterns. We will then draw on foresight and futures approaches, and systems thinking to identify actionable insights you can apply to your work.

Join us for an interactive workshop to practice using Sense-making through applying it to your context

Join Jade Maloney and a team of skilled facilitators on Friday 8 May 2020, 12.00pm - 1:30PM AEST, to apply this Sense-making tool to your team, organisation or program.
