

Sophie Hennes | Consultant

Sophie joined ARTD after completing her studies in data and psychological science, focusing on analytics, research, and statistical modelling. She brings skills in quantitative data analysis and research, with experience using R for analysis.

Sophie's teamwork skills have developed from several collaborative group projects within both of her majors, some spanning interdisciplinary areas such as marine science and population health. Her keen eye for detail ensures thorough, high-quality insights, which she contributes to evaluations across multiple sectors.

I am passionate about interpreting diverse data sources and pulling them together to create clear narratives that guide decisions and drive real-world impact.

Education:

- Bachelor of Science (Data Science and Psychological Science), University of Sydney, 2024
