

Greta Westermann | Senior Consultant

Greta is passionate about consulting with people with lived experience and other stakeholders to ensure that their voices are heard and accurately represented in evaluations.

She joined ARTD in 2022, bringing experience in qualitative and mixed methods research and co-research with people with lived experience of disability from her work in academic research and evaluation. At ARTD, Greta applies this experience working on projects in the health, mental health, disability, and social housing sectors.

I enjoy engaging with service users and program participants to understand their unique experiences and translate them into policy recommendations.

Education:

- Master of Science (Health Education and Promotion), Maastricht University, 2020
 - Bachelor of Arts (Public Health), University of Bremen, 2019

Sector experience: Health and wellbeing

Greta draws on her experience working as a nurse, and in public health to lead and contribute to evaluations in the health and wellbeing sectors. She is particularly experienced in qualitative data collection, analysis and reporting. She has conducted interviews with a broad range of project stakeholders to produce strategic advice, evaluation frameworks, and balanced project recommendations.
